VOL. LXIII. No. 50. REDWOOD CITY, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, MARCH 10, 1923 ESTABLISHED 1859

VOTE YES ON SCHOOL BONDS NEXT FRIDAY

Next Friday the peopleof the Redwood School District will be called upon to vote at a school bond election. It is proposed to issue $56,000 worth of bonds. The purpose of the issue is for the acquiring of the present high school property for the use of the Elementary School. The High School trustees have put a price of $40,000 upon their property. This is a most reasonable price. The Elementary School must have more class rooms. It will take fully $16,000 to remodel and equip the buildings for class use.

Were the Elementary School to purchase a tract the size of the Sequoia property and build a brick building upon it, the trustees would have to ask for at least three times as much as they are now requesting.

We trust that there will be no one in Redwood City who will cast an opposing vote. It is absolutely necessary to provide additional room for the grammar school. We will never have a better chance for securing that room at so reasonable a rate.

VOTE YES.

Don't forget the time—Friday, March 16.

Remember the place—Central Grammar School.

VOTE YES.

HORTICULTURAL REPORT FOR FEB.

March 1, 1923

To The Honorable Board of Supervisors, San Mateo County:

Spraying operations, for the dormant period, are practically over, and while not as much spraying has been done as I had desired, there has been double the amount of spray used this winter as compared to last which showed a hundred percent increase over 1920.

We thought that January, with 662 shipments, was a good month as far as the movement of nursery stock was concerned, but February has established a record, in fact the whole force of this office has been kept busy on inspection work to the exclusion of nearly everything else. We have had a total of 1772 shipments of 561434 plants and packages to inspect during the month 1741 shipments being from California points and outgoing from the county. As is to be expected, the greater part of these shipments have been ornamental, aproximately half, but we have received 13,977 fruit trees or enough to plant about two hundred acres. Of these 7,127 have been pears, 2,325 apricots, 453 plum, 853 peach, 507 walnut, balance mixed varieties. The most of the planting has been in the territory south of Woodside Road and west of the Highway, although 800 apricots have been received for planting in the Toyon Knolls Subdivision, and numerous small plantings of pears have been made in the Ravenswood.

Respectfully submitted,

A. W. TATE, JR.,

Horticultural Commissioner, San Mateo County.

WOODSIDE CHIRPS

At last. Searsville Lake, with its many scenic advantages, is to be utilied as a summer resort. For many years, while under the ownership of the Spring Valley Water Company, it was the mecca of the Sunday picnic party. Hundreds of automobile parties ate their lunches there and scattered their discarded papers and empty sardine cans about the neighborhood, and swam in its waters and hiked about its wooded boundaries. But when the property was transferred to Stanford University some two years ago, gates were put up, and chains and locks, so the picnicers were compelled to satisfy themselves with less favorable surroundings for their rustic meal.

Now, however, a concession has been granted by the University and a real resort will be maintained. Cabins are being erected, diving platforms installed and ten boats and canoes have been ordered. The only entrance will be by the way of the Sand Hill road and the gates will still be closed to the casual picnic party.

Percy Jarvis has blossomed out with a new Durant Sport Special, the very one in fact that attracted so much attention on the floor at the recent auto show in San Francisco.

Mrs. Herbert Allen and her children spent the week end at the Jackling place. Mrs. Allen is the sister of Mrs. Jackling.

Dr. Bradford Leavitt of Pasadena visited his place at Woodside this week. Dr. Leavitt is pastor of the Unitarian church in Pasadena.

A wedding was celebrated here on Sunday last. Miss Grace Savage daughter of Capt. John B. Savage, U. S. A., was married to Claude Graham of San Francisco, at the home of Rev. Benjamin St. John.

Mrs. John D. Gish has left for a two weeks visit with Mrs. Bradford Leavitt at Pasadena.

The baseball team of the Woodside school had its first contest on Wednesday afternoon when it met defeat at the hands of the team from Los Lomitas School. Both the contest and the defeat came as a surprise for, by some misunderstanding, our boys expected only a little practise with some of the boys from the other school. So their breath, and perhaps some of their nerve was taken away, when there appeared, unexpectedly, four automobiles full of cheering partizans of the Los Lomitis School. But they pulled themselves together after a while and played their best and were thankful when it was over, that the score was no worse than the 19 to 6 with which it ended. They will play better ball after a few competitions for there is good material here. I haven't the names of the winners who deserve to be remembered but our team lined up as follows:

Pitcher, Carl Silva; catcher, Elliot Bartholomew; 1st base, Emmett O'Neill; 3d base, Vernal Kelley; Shortstop, Oliver Gish; right field, Fred Blackington; center field, Tommy Shine; left field, Raymond von Savoye. Alphonsus O'Neill was the umpire and was noticeably fair in all his rulings.

After the main event was over, the girls wishing to wipe out the stain of defeat, challenged the girls of Los Lomitis to a game which we won with a score of 7 to 3. Our girls playing were: Helen Langley, Margaret Stewart, Helen Abrahams and Susan Silva. They are looking now, for new fields to conquer.

SAN CARLOS ITEMS

Mrs. M. A. Hammenly of the San Carlos apartments left last Tuesday for a fortnight's visit at the home of her mother in Tulare.

Mrs. F. A. Manson of San Francisco is a guest at the home of Mrs. R. E. Johnston on Sycamore street.

We are reminded that the Chautauqua season is approaching and that it will be but a few short weeks when this great educational and inspirational institution will pitch its big tent in Redwood City for a week of high class entertainment by a number of noted speakers and orators. It is high time that we were laying aside a few dollars for the purchase of season tickets that we may have the pleasure and the great advantage of attending all of the afternoon and evening meetings at the price of one evening's entertainment at any of the playhouses in San Francisco, where similar entertainments are given. President Harding speaks in very high praise of the American Chautauqua. The time has long passed when there could be any doubt of Chautauqua's service to the country; we are far past the era of misunderstanding when this great work could be waved aside with the light word and the gesture of tolerant superiority. Its wide appeal and high place in public confidence have imposed upon Chautauqua a given responsibility, and it is meeting that responsibility in a manner worthy of all approval. Chautauqua has served to reveal the individual American community to itself at its best. It has been a voluntary, inspirational service in which men and women have given the best they have in them for the sake of the social interest.

Mrs. D. McCammon of San Francisco is visiting her father, W. H. Phillips at the Eddie Perry ranch in the Hillsdale district.

History repeats itself: In Biblical language, "The stone which was rejected has become the head of the corner." And it is again written, "A child shall lead them." It is only a few years back, when we were the baby village of the peninsula, and a mighty sick and stunted child at that. When to live n San Carlos was to become the butt of the jokesters at any fraternal or social entertainment one might attend. But times have changed, we have been rediscovered, and we have now grown unil we are to be the hub of the universe, for a time at least, when the Peninsula Pageant of Progress is staged here, May 26 to June 3. The committee of the Peninsula Fair Association are being complimented on every hand upon their good judgment in selecting San Carlos as the most picturesque place and the one enjoying the most equable and delightful climate of any community between San Francisco and San Jose, or of any point in the state for that matter. Strangers visiting this great industrial show and historical pageant will go away with the impression that the entire peninsula is blessed with the same balmy climate and the same natural advantages as "this modern Garden of Eden" which has so modestly and patiently bided the time when it would come into its own.

The young folks in San Carlos are all delighted to learn that the school trustees have decided to purchase a high-class player piano for the school audtorium, so that they won't be dependent upon volunteer music or paid musicians when they want to gather at the school house for an impromptu dance and a few hours' entertainment. The old instrument will be turned in as part payment on the new one.

Frank H. Daugherty, formerly agent for the Southern Pacific Company at Vine, California, was here last Tuesday soliciting business for The Prudential Insurance Company, as one of their special agents with headquarters in San Jose. Mr. Daugherty has been with The Prudential people since he left the transportation game some years ago.

Mrs. N. T. Smith, who has been spending the winter in Los Angeles, has written her friends that she expects to return home, leaving Los Angeles on the morning of the 12th.

Miss BessieO'Brien, who formerly lived in San Carlos, but whose home is now in San Francisco, is here for a week's visit at the homes of her friends, Mrs. W. L. Kenealy on Magnolia avenue and Mrs. W. H. Mahany on Walnut street.

On account of the many new homes going up and the small orchards being planted here this spring, Newton Peck, the jolly tree doctor, is again making his daily visits to the post office and railroad and express stations here for the inspection of trees and plants coming into town by parcels post, express and freight.

FREE AMERICAN SPEECH

In this star-spangled country free speech should be the American language.

PART OF THE SHOW

A young Salvation Army Captain, noted for her good looks, who made Broadway stop, look and listen, said in an article the other day, "You have to be part of the show if you want people to look at you." The young lady never made a truer saying. It is true regarding communities as well as regarding people. We in Redwood City want people to say, "Oh, yes, Redwood City is the place where they have such fine schools and municipal buildings." We don't want to be known for the bad streets leading into town or for the subdivisions which should have restrictions placed upon them.

PLAINLY STATING THE CASE

The country wants an American merchant marine, flying the American flag and carrying American commerce to the remote places of the globe. But to want is one thing and possession another. We have the ships, but they are largely idle at the docks because, under our navigation laws and policy of other maritime nations of paying subsidies, we find ourselves at a costly disadvantage. It costs more to man and operate an American ship than it costs to man and operate a foreign ship. Other countries are not as progressive and humane as we are in our laws for the protection and comfort of the crews. Other countries have not been as squeamish about paying subsidies to extend their commerce and mails to the distant lands of the earth.

ERA OF CHEAP LAND FOREVER GONE IN U. S.

The frontiers in America have vanished. The era of cheap lands will never return. From now on the price of land will be increased because of the natural scarcity of tillable areas and the increasing cost of cultivating land which is tillable.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, there are 40,000,000 acres of absolute desert; 270,000,000 acres of forest land 600,000,000 acres of land which is semi-arid and suitable only for grazing.

Those who wish new lands can find plenty of it in cut-over sections at prices ranging from $10 to $50 per acre. But it would cost all the way from $35 to $200 per acre to clear the land and place it ready for cultivation. There are 91,000,000 acres of undrained land that can be purchased cheaply, but the cost of drainage is almost prohibitive.

THE PEOPLE'S INTEREST

When the resignation of H. C. Tuchson as town trustee of Redwood City was accepted last July, it was the duty of the remaining members of the board to appoint someone in his place, a duty thus far unfulfilled. It is to the people's interest that the fifth member of the board be appointed and the feeling is becoming prevalent that the board should not shirk their responsibility. Several good suggestions have been made for the appointment of the other member, but all have been opposed by some of the board and no result accomplished.

The fifth member may be necessary to prevent a deadlock in the board and should be an independent far-sighted man, not afraid to express his opinions and not to be dominated by other interests. Several such men have been suggested and it is up to the board to appoint one of them. The Times-Gazette favors the appointment of the other member and will not cease its efforts in that direction until such appointment has been made and the interests of the people of the town served.

A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The 67th Congress adjourned last Sunday at noon and for the first time in eight years the members of the Senate and the Lower House will have a nine month rest. Many old timers, most prominent among them, "Uncle Joe" Cannon, will retire to private life.

The 67th Congress had a Republican majority and served under a Republican president. It is doubtful if any previous Congress has enacted more beneficial legislation. Some measures, notably "Ship Subsidy" and the "Towner-Sterling Education Measure" did not pass; but future sessions will see them and other acts of corresponding importance enacted.

Some of the things done were the restricting of immigration; a downward revision of taxes; reduction of the Army and Navy; gave Great Britain 62 years in which to pay her $4,800,000,000 war debt; made peace with Germany and ratified various treaties negotiated by the Washington Conference, including the Four-power Pact and the Naval Limitation Agreement; created the Veteran's Bureau and fixed an annual appropriation of approximately $500,000,000 for the relief of ex-service men; passed rural credit legislation; created coal mining commission to work out the full problem; passed bills to help farmers.

In addition to all of the above this Congress passed the McCormick Budget Act, and operated for the first time in history under a scientific budget system, which affected large savings and put the Government upon a business basis.

President Harding has done nothing that was spectacular; but he has fathered good business ideas. He has been a successful business man. History will place him as one of our best presidents because of his business ability.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY TOLD

Elmendorf, January 29, 1923

My Dear Friend Cuthbertson:-

Your most welcome letter was waiting for me on my return from the trip along the Rhine. When the political horizon began to gather clouds for the last big upheaval I thought that this was about the best time to see the Rhine and also include a trip thru the "Ruhr" territory to gather some knowledge about the political and economical crisis which is now almost at its peak I left my old home January 17 for Cologne, the axle of British Forces for Rhine occupation. A most orderly city was the first impression I gained on arriving there. The best hotel was used for headquarters and an unusual amount of British soldiers were the only outward signs. I took the big dome climb of 518 steps, same reducer I must say, but worth the climb. The next stop I made was Dortmund. Here were the first signs of civil unrest, due to the killing of a German boy by a French post. The French were moving through with the field kitchens and autos of equipment, and I also saw the first wrangle of civilians with the conductors about vacating a railway compartment (2 class) for officers of the French army, the civilians getting seats third class for 2nd. class fares. My next move was to Essen the big industry city of Krupp's. A city where factory after factory was belching smoke into the air. This was one of the most important points for French exploiting. They closed the Reichsbank by placing a post at the front doors and confiscating funds of the bank for the French government. The bank employees finally protested and went out on strike, and all other banks of Essen followed suit. The French finally withdrew the post and released the confiscated funds and the banks opened the doors.

A French paper was started "right off the bat." Orders were put out that all policemen and other employees wearing a uniform must salute an officer of the French army. I had the pleasure of seeing three officers giving a policeman a calling down for not saluting. After the officers left crowds began to gather around this "hero" and he was offered cigars from most every man. The feeling runs high against the French and it may come to war within a short time. The only drawback is lack of equipment, not lack of fighting spirit. Men of families, after having served three or four years, are ready to answer the cry of battle again with a desperate spirit. The most important talk on meeting is the French and the high cost of living. It is some times pathetic to see a group of people standing in front of a butcher shop or grocery store and looking at the high prices. It means to some of them that their meat rations are going to be shortened again if the prices go up like they been. In Essen I found the Masonic lodge and found that they had a first that night but it was not my privilege to see it, as I had my plans made to leave Essen that night and no train left for Elberfeld late at night. In Elberfeld I met the first town free from soldiers. I took a ride on the "Strassenbahn" for 34 minutes. This railroad is built over a river hanging on the rails and offers a novel as well as good means of travel. From this city I left for Bahn, a beautiful old university city. But what a difference between an American and one of these old buildings. The upkeep has to be neglected, not enough funds. My next move was to Coblenz, the American city of occupation. The troops were leaving at the time. I made a trip to "Ehrenbreitenstein, a wonderful old castle and was awed at the massive masonry work and took in the beautiful scenery, a wonderful sight. The American troops encamped in this castle. The next morning I shook the dust from off my shoes and left Mainz, the main center of French occupation and saw how the French were drilling with machine guns and flying machine preparing for another battle which may come very soon. My next move was to Heidelburg, where I saw the "Heidelburg Castle" with the "big barrel." These old nobles had luxuries that would do justice to a modern millionaire. The wine was pumped from the "big barrel" to banquet hall, barbeque rooms with a chimney bigger than a house, where the oxen were roasted. All of the products were brought to the castle by the tenth method. The "big barrel" was filled I think three times, 221,726 liters capacity. But all the other parts are worth while seeing; wonderfully constructed doors, all of inlaid work. I believe Mr. Gill would be spending a day looking the doors over. They are certainly wonders. They even had inlaid floors and wonderful old ovens, some as old as 400 years. The city itself is wonderfully situated in a valley.

From Heidelburg to Munich, the beer center of Germany, but it did not interest me and I soon left for Nurnberg, an old city. This city I believe is the oldest and was in the oldest days one of the best known and most important industrial centers of Germany. Here is a big toy industry in full bloom. But the old castle is worth while seeing. A deep well 75 meters through solid rock taking 30 years to build gives us some idea of the pains they took to fortify themselves against their foes. The whole city is surrounded by a wall and a big stone-walled ditch with big gates and towers at the most important centers. From this city I left for home to be present at the big birthday party in honor of my mother's 65th birday. All the children and some of the grand children were present, a most happy reunion.

I have not seen any Masonry so far but will endeavor to hold some communication before I leave for my new home in America and I will tell you more about it on return.

NO FIRE AT SEQUOIA THEATRE

W. J. O'Brien, manager of the Sequoia Theatre of this city requests us to state that our contemporary was in error in stating that a fire occured at his theatre last week, which after having burned through one of the seats caught in the floor and was in flames when discovered. All that occured was that someone left a cigarette on one of the leather seats which schorched a hole in the upholstery, there were no flames. The report circulated last week, said Mr. O'Brien, caused him much trouble and he is doing all in his power to have the correct facts set before the public. He also wants to warn smokers against leaving burning cigarettes in the theatre and says that if any similar cases occur that he will have to discontinue the smoking section.

Spots that appear in clothing caused by grease, food stains, etc., quickly collect dust and dirt. They can be permanently removed by the "F. Thomas Process" without injury to the fabric.

The "F. Thomas Process" is a highly developed, scientific method of cleaning by which we obtain the perfect work for which this establishment is noted.

The cheap, "just as good" cleaner either washes your clothes in dirty gasoline, or scours his gasoline with strong sulphuric acid. It is dangerous to have your clothes cleaned in "acid" gasoline. It is economy in the long run to have your clothes they haven't been thoroughly cleaned.

Every drop of cleaning fluid that we use is carefully re-distilled in our plant. Special equipment that we have installed to properly handle this work represents an investment of thousands of dollars.

Our equipment to redistill and purify our cleaning fluids alone represents a bigger investment than

USE OF DYNAMITE ON THE FARM

(By John D. Gish.)

Of the many modern aids to successful farming, not the least is the use of dynamite. And of the many uses of dynamite on the farm, the most important are, in their order, the preparation of the soil for orchard planting, the clearing from land of forest trees, and the draining of swampy land.

We have passed the time when the appearance of the top layer of soil is sufficient for the orchardist. Now every intelligent farmer is provided with a dirt auger and extension handle with which he is able to probe to any desired length, and if he is sufficiently careful, he will keep a log or record of his findings. If he finds a sufficient depth of loose loamy soil to take care of the root system of his trees, he may dispense with dynamite, although its use is of advantage even in such soils. If he finds a compacted clay subsoil, the use of dynamite is greatly advisable, for the shaking and cracking of such subsoil will much facilitate the penetration of moisture and induce a wider spread of the root system. But if he finds a layer of hardpan, then the use of dynamite becomes absolutely necessary if he would have an orchard that will not bring shame to him.

There is much of this underlying hard-pan in California. A few decades ago, a farming colony from Holland settled on a considerable tract of land in our central valley, and, taking into consderation the surface of the soil, planted orchards over a large part of the tract. After a few years the trees began to decline and the colony was abondoned as a failure. Some years after, a post auger was used and an underlying hard-pan 'shot' with dynamite and new trees planted. It is now one of the most successful orchard regions in California.

Commercial dynamite is to be had in varying strengths and adapted to different purposes. Thus it may be had in strength ranging from 15 per cent to 80 per cent. This means merely that that in the case of 15 per cent dynamite the cartridge consists of dynamite mixed with woodpulp in the proportion of 15 parts of dynamite to 85 parts of wood-pulp. In the 80 per cent dynamite you get 80 parts of dynamite mixed with 20 parts of wood-pulp. The larger the percentage of wood-pulp, the slower the ignition of the dynamite and therewith you get a lifting, spreading force rather than a smashing blow. The higher grades of dynamite are used in the rock quarries and in similar work, but for ordinary farm work, the 20 or 25 percent dynamite is most effective.

If there is no hard-pan, and you are merely shooting the subsoil, the best depth for the charge is about three and a half feet. You will use an inch and a half auger to bore the hole. After crimping a cap to the fuse, and inserting the cap into the cartridge, it is advisabe to tie it in place to prevent the cap pulling out when the cartridge is lowered. The cartridge or 'stick,' is an inch and a quarter in diameter and will just slip easily into the auger hole. A broom or rake handle makes the best tamping bar. Press down with this bar until you are sure that the cartridge is at the bottom of the hole, then begin filling in the earth slowly, tamping firmly as you go. Upon this tamping depends, in large measure, the result of your work. Unless you tamp well the exploding gasses will find the lines of least resistance upward and hurl masses of dirt and clods into the air instead of expending its force underground where its effect is desired. If the charge is properly set, the surface of the ground will be heaved a little and the ground will be shaken, cracked and loosened for a radius of about six feet.

There will always be a 'pot-hole' where the ground is forced back from the exploding cartridge and this 'pot-hole' must be filled with earth before the tree is planted.

Where a stratum of hard-pan is found, the cartridge must be placed directly in the stratum to obtain the best results—not above or below.

On a tract of 640 acres that I farmed in Sutter county, I found, by testing with a dirt auger, that underlying nearly one-half of the tract was a stratum of fine white clay, the particles so cemented together as to be almost hard as rock and absolutely impervious to water or plant roots. This stratum varied in thickness from four to seven inches and was found at a depth beneath the surface varying from three to four and a half feet. Of course, I had planned for the orchard just where the hard-pan seemed the worst. But I 'shot' the holes for several thousand trees with most excellent results.

A second use for dynamite is the clearing from land of trees too large to respond to the efforts of a stump-puller. I once found it necessary to clear a tract of land of a large number of stately oak trees reaching a diameter, in some instances, of seven feet. To grub them out was not possible with the time and supply of labor at my command. I first tried sawing down the tree and blasting out the stump, but found that the powder charge would split the stump in the center with out lifting the roots from the ground. I finally hit upon the idea of letting the weight of the top pull out the roots after they had been loosened by the dynamite. I found that very few trees were exactly symmetrical, most of them were a little off center having the greater weight of the top to one side or the other of the stem. Taking advantage of this fact, I bored under the base of the tree but a little back of center on the side opposite the weight of the top. At the bottom of this auger hole, I exploded a half stick of dynamite to spring a pocket. This pocket I then filled with dynamite, twenty or thirty sticks. Into the last stick, I inserted a cap and fuse and then tamped thoroughly. The exploding charge loosened the ground from the roots and lifted that side of the tree. The overhanging top of the tree then did the rest, toppling slowly over and pulling most of the roots from the soil as it went. I afterwards used dynamite in reducing these trees to firewood, but that is another story.

The third use of this explosive on the farm is to procure drainage, but there is not so much need for that in this state as in some other locations. A swamp may be due to an impervious, underlying hard-pan in which case the remedy is to find the hard-pan with the auger and break it up with explosive charges as in the case of orchard planting. There will be no need of tamping as the water above the charge makes a good substitute for tamped earth. A little parafin placed around the end of the cap where the fuse is inserted and about the hole where the cap is forced into the cartridge will make the charge water-proof.

Or it may be desired to drain the swamp by means of ditches which can be excavated with dynamite with much less expenditure of time and labor than with pick and shovel. In both of these cases it is advisable to set a number of charges and fire them simultaneously by means of a spark from an electric battery.

These are but a few of the uses that a farmer will find for the employment of dynamite, but I should not advise carrying too large a stock in the powder house lest the farmer be tempted, some day when the north wind is burning his grain, and the red spider is denuding his trees, and the grasshoppers are destroying his garden, and the army worms are advancing in mass formation, and the gophers running wild, to take the contents of his powder house and, placing it under the center of his farm, blow the whole place with all his worries into the air.

RYAN SUPPLIES THE LAUGHS AT MEETING OF SUPERVISORS

The charges of Mark Ryan, trustee of Redwood City, against Jim Dalziel, the traffic officer of the Second township, caused much merriment at the last meeting of the Board of Supervisors. Following Ryan's arrest by Dalziel for speeding, and the arrest of one of Ryan's drivers on the same charge, for which two offenses Justice of the Peace Bird extracted the sum of $75 from the Ryan treasury, the irate trustee-electrician appeared before the board and charged the officer with a conspiracy to drive him, Ryan, off the roads of the county. He also charged the road officer with frequenting bootleg "joints" and even hinted at him being one of the bootleg profession himself. In view of the serious nature of the charge, Supervisor Brown suggested that it would be more proper to wait before hearing any more accusations against the officer until he could be present to defend himself. The matter was accordingly laid over until last Monday.

When Ryan appeared before the board last Monday he charged that a conspiracy existed to drive him off the roads of the county Ryan admitted that he was exceeding the speed limit, however, at the time of his arrest. Chairman Thompson explained to Ryan that the traffic officer had nothing to do with the amount of fine imposed by the judge.

In confirmation of his claims that Dalziel was a frequenter of bootleg "joints" Ryan claimed that he frequented the Rainbow Cafe on the highway. "Do you as a trustee of Redwood City acknowledge that there is a bootleg 'joint' here?" asked Chairman Thompson. "Sure it is," answered Ryan. When questioned about his relations with the Rainbow Cafe, Dalziel, explained that he often had his meals there.

Ryan had a number of witnesses to prove that the traffic officer was addicted to the use of spiritous beverages, only one claimed, however, to have seen him drunk, and he admitted that he was himsely drunk at the time.

"The board has no time to listen to personal grievances," said Thompson. Hickey, supervisor of the First township, said, "The officer did his duty in arresting you. You were violating the State Motor Vehicle Act."

After the discussion had continued for over an hour, in which time many comical situations arose and many hearty laughs were enjoyed by the supervisors as well as by the large audience of onlookers, who hearing of Ryan's "revenge" had gathered to watch the fun, the matter was taken under advisement by the board.

WILL VISIT CHILDHOOD HOME

Harry Hatch, former sheriff of San Mateo county, was in Redwood City this week greeting old friends. Mr. Hatch returned last week from a visit to Honolulu, where he and Mrs. Hatch spent a pleasant time reviewing the scenes and enjoying the island life.

On the 17th of March he and his wife will leave for an eastern trip via the Panama Canal. They will go to New York where they will remain for several weeks after which they will leave for Woodstock, Canada, where Mr. Hatch was born and from which place he left for Half Moon Bay 63 years ago as a boy of 5.

Harry Hatch has been one of the most prominent citizens of San Mateo county for many years. Forty years ago, as a tall, fine looking young man he was elected sheriff of San Mateo county. He was a democrat and defeated Warren H. Walker, one of the best known republicans in this section. At the next election he defeated Benjamin A. Rankin in an exceedingly hard campaign. His second term, however, was his last, as the late W. H. Kinnie came out of the North End and with a whirlwind campaign brought the sheriff's office back into the republican fold. Those were the days of bitter partisan feeling and mighty few men allowed anything but their political affiliations to influence them.

Mr. Hatch resided in Redwood City for a short time after he left office and then moved to San Mateo.

When Burlingame was put upon the market he purchased a number of lots in what has become the business section of that municipality. He has improved them and now when he wishes to do so he can travel to distant scenes and enjoy life. He expects to remain in the east several months and on his return will come via the Yellowstone National Park.

The new home erected recently by P. W. Selby, not far from the old Selby residence site, was sold this week by M. A. McCann for $10,000 to San Francisco parties. It had just been completed by Weeden Bros. There is a big demand for this class of building all over the peninsula.

Karl Rosenfield, proprietor of the Menlo Park Peony Gardens, yesterday shipped a carload of peony bulbs to Gilbert H. Wild, a grower and wholesale dealer in Missouri.

A new business has quitely been developing in San Mateo county of which few have been aware of and that is the business of raising pigeons and their squabs for the market.

If a roll call were made several thousand pigeons would be found on the list owned by several different men and their lofts covering several acres of ground.

Some of the men have just recently moved from across the bay, being attracted by more direct shipping routes, cheaper feed and to get away from the fogs.

One loft alone represents the investment of several thousand dollars and will require several people to take care of the work in connection with it.

One young man whose hobby is racing pigeons and who often sends an order for stock birds to Europe has recently sold birds at a price that shows a profit.

A club has been formed trat plans on reaching out and including all pigeon men in San Mateo county and races will be held this spring in which birds will be sent 500 miles and will "home" in a day, a challenge has been sent across the bay asking the clubs over there to engage in a race for money, marbles or chalk, proving that the local men think they have birds as good as the best.

The first regular meeting of the newly organized pigeon club was held at the lofts of G. F. Walker February 25th. The club will be known as the Peninsula Pigeon Club and will start out with Mr. G. F. Walker as president and R. L. Carson acting as secretary.

All members will be required to become members of the American Racing Pigeon Union as the club has applied for a charter from the Union and will fly their races under their rules and regulations.

Any one who keeps pigeons either as a hobby or for business, either fancy, utility or racing are invited to join the club whose object will be to hold races and promote the business of raising pigeons for a profit as well as to enable all to profit by the experience of others and raise the standard and enable the birds raised on the peninsula to hold their own when shown at the annual shows around the bay towns and elsewhere.

The fifteen acres of land surrounding the old Selby home is to be resubdivided into small holdings and sold as choice ,restricted home sites. It will be called Selby Tract. Here will cluster pretty homes of the middle class.

Next Monday will mark the formal opening of the new United States Veterans' hospital located here. An invitation is extended the people of San Mateo County to inspect the buildings on that day between one and five o'clock in the afternoon. Hon. Julius Kahn, the veteran congressman of the Fourth district, has been invited to make the speech of the occassion, but he has declined wing to illness.

Invitations are now being sent out from the hospital by Col. Frank E. Leslie, medical corps, U. S. A., who is in command at the institution, to state and county officials, to women's clubs and other organizations, to the officers of the Letterman, Marine and other hospitals, and to the public generally. While no formal dedicatory exercises will be held, there will be a formal program of music, and an informal reception.

Some day next week more than 100 patients will be received at the new hospital from other points in the State, where they are now being cared for. Requests for ten additional officers to the twenty-one now on duty has been made by Colonel Leslie. The entire personnel of the hospital at present numbers 330, and there are 425 patients.

Erected at a cost of more than a million dollars, and consisting of a group of 22 concrete buildings equipped with the bost modern facilities, the new unit is to be inspected by State and county officials, by army commanders and by physicians, representativees of the American Legion and the Disabled War Veterans.

The new hospital will accommodate 500 patients. It includes a complete clinical building, a tuberculosis pavillion, a home for the housing of 50 nurses, quarters for officers, a central heating plant and a central kitchen and dining room, in addition to numerous other structures necessary for efficient functioning.

NATION SHOULD PROTECT IT'S CHILDREN, SAYS SHORTRIDGE

Senator S. M. Shortridge will arrive from Washington next week. After a short vacation he will resume his law practice in San Francisco. Mr. Shortridge introduced many new bills in the senate and participated in numerous debates, making several noted speeches. Mr. Shortridge as a member of the Judiciary Committee recently submitted a report on the Child Labor amendment to the Constitution, to the senate. He is interested in this law and urged its adoption. This is a part of what he says on the subject:

In considering the proposed child labor amendment to the constitution, it would seem to be perfectly plain that the high, paramount duty of the government is to care for the child life of the nation. This is not a state, but a national duty.

Now, inasmuch as Congress has twice attempted to protect the children of the republic by the passages of two of several child labor laws, we have a right to assume that Congress thought it had the constitutional power to do so, and we have a right to assume also that Congress thought it right to exercise that power.

Moreover, we have a right to assume that the mature, deliberate judgment of the American people, represented in Congress, was that laws should be passed regulating the labor of children. But, inasmuch as the United States Supreme Court has decided that Congress is without power to pass such laws, however desirable or beneficial they may be, it now is proposed to amend the constitution and confer specific power upon Congress to legislate in respect to this matter.

It should be understood that the proposed amendment will not deprive the states of any of their power to legislate concerning child labor, nor does it add to the power of the states.

The proposed amendment gives to the federal government, however, the same, or like, powers now vested in the several states.

If the several states shall pass and enforce wise laws for the labor of children—pass laws as to the hours of labor, conditions of night and day work, as to moral and hygienic surroundings, there may be no necessity for Congress to exercise the power which it is proposed to confer; but if the states fail or neglect to enact and enforce such wholesome and desirable laws, the power will be in Congress to deal with the subject.

It should be forever borne in mind that this is one nation, and that we should do everything possible to develop the citizenship of the nation, divided up as it is into forty-eight states.

Inasmuch as the Congress has twice considered it necessary and wise to enact a law for the protection of the child life of our Nation it would seem to be the mature and deliberate judgment of the people that such a law would be beneficial. We must assume that Congress considered that it had the power to enact such laws and thought it for the welfare of the Nation to exercise that power. But inasmuch as the Supreme Court of the United States, in Hammer vs Dagenhart (supra) and Bailey v. Drexel Furniture Co. (supra), decided that the Congress under the existing Constitution did not have that power, it is proposed to confer or delegate that power by way of a proposed amendment.

First. It can not be questioned but that it is a paramount duty of Government to guard and protect the welfare of is children to the end that they may have the utmost opportunity possible to attain the maximum development of their moral, intellectual, and physical beings. This is manifestly the due of all children since they are brought into the world without volition, entirely helpless and dependent. But this is not a one simple justice to childhood. It is also of the greatest importance to every state that its citizens should attain the highest development above indicated. And it may be observed that while under our dual system of government the power and duty to make adequate provision by law for the accomplishment of those most desirable ends now vested in the several states, nevertheless it is as important to the National Government as it is to the government of every state that its citizenry be afforded every opportunity for legitimate development and that such development should neither be stunted nor destroyed by a neglect to pass adequate laws for the protection of childhood.

Herein lies the justification for the Government of the United States in asking of the states, that upon it be conferred power concurrent with their own to legislate upon this matter so vital to both. If the states shall have passed appropriate laws, it is safe to say that any legislation of Congress will march side by side with such laws. If a state has been unmindful of its duty, then such congressional legislation will work no injury but rather a positive benefit to the state itself as well as to the National Government.

Hence your committee reports in favor of the submission to the legislatures of the several states of some form of constitutional amendment conferring power upon the Congress to legislate upon the subject.

Second. What form shall that proposed amendment bear? Unquestionably it should take the form of a grant of power, and unquestionably the limitations of that power should be precisely defined. Beyond peradventure it should contemplate the future as well as the present. Indisputably it should be a power concurrent with that of the states, since its purpose is not to deprive the states of any of their powers but only to confer like powers on the National Government.

"I'm a pretty good doctor, myself!"

The Ice Man speaks with authority.

It is notoriously true that in districts where ice is seldom used—New York tenements, for instance—there is more than the usual amount of sickness.

Plenty of ice all the time means fresh, wholesome food all the time. And good health is largely dependent upon good food. There is no other way to look at it.

Ice costs little. It is a definite safeguard of health. Keep your refrigerator filled with ice every day in the year. It isn't worth the risk to do without it.
